

The purpose of this policy is to explain what types of information Macrolan may collect when you visit our website. It is important to note that we do not collect personally-identifiable information (name, address, e-mail address, etc) unless you subscribe to one of our services, submit a website questionnaire or request information via e-mail. Macrolan does not make your personally-identifiable information available to any party, unless required to do so by law. For website security purposes and to ensure this service remains available to all visitors, Macrolan may deploy software programs to monitor unauthorized attempts to upload or change information and/or cause damage.

Privacy Policy for Macrolan website visitors

Macrolan may automatically collect and store the following non-identifying information when you visit our website. Macrolan may store this information in system log files and may use it to make our website more useful to visitors by learning the number of visitors, the number of pages served, and the level of demand for specific pages.

- The Internet Protocol (IP) address from which you access the Macrolan website.
- What type of browser, such as Internet Explorer, operating system, such as Windows Vista or Linux, has been used to access the website.
- The date and time our website is accessed, for the purpose of monitoring demand.
- The pages visited, for the purpose of improving the usefulness of our website by providing helpful links and removing pages that are not accessed.

Information Collected from E-mail communications

When you send Macrolan personally-identifying information in an e-mail, we will use it to gather the data or information you requested. The information you submit may be viewed by various people within Macrolan.

The information in your e-mails is protected in accordance with South African law, including the Promotion of Access to Information Act, the Regulation of Interception and Provision of Communication-related Information Act, and the Electronic Communications and Transactions Act.

Privacy Policy for Macrolan Clients

When subscribing to Macrolan services, in terms of the provisions of Legislation, customers may be required to furnish Macrolan with personally-identifiable information. This information includes but is not limited to memoranda and articles of association (when the client is a company), and/or identity documents and proof of address. The information provided to Macrolan in this regard will be entered into the Macrolan client database.

Please be aware that Macrolan may change this Privacy Policy from time to time so it is important to note that these changes will be reflected on this web page. Macrolan safeguards your information using industry standards and procedures.
